Concept of Master's Degree Studies in Business Administration at Bielefeld University of Applied Sciences

The demands placed on graduates of business administration studies have steadily increased in recent years. Outstanding personalities with in-depth knowledge in specialist fields of economics as well as comprehensive foreign language skills and extracurricular skills are highly sought-after for analysing and solving problems in the increasingly dynamic business practice.

A four-semester master's degree study in Business Administration at Bielefeld UAS will comprehensively qualify you for these complex challenges. It will provide you with the skills that employers expect from you today: Expertise, dealing with interdisciplinary content as well as strong practical orientation, multilingualism, leadership, team and integration skills.

Against this background, Bielefeld UAS offers six specialised full-time master's degree studies. All study programmes are connected as in some areas they share a common range of modules. The carefully selected modules provide you with the opportunity to address subject-specific topics in small groups with a high degree of interaction and likewise call for interdisciplinary exchange of ideas in larger groups with participants from different subject and cultural backgrounds.

Study Objectives

As a graduate of the master's degree study in International Business Management, you will be able to develop your competence in the international and globalised world of business, consisting of the following fields of skills:

Professional Skills

You will have a broad and critical understanding of the current state of knowledge and scientific methods in the field of international general management, in order to evaluate entrepreneurial alternatives and to develop, implement and evaluate concrete solutions for practical problems in the international context. This takes account of the economy's demand that in addition to specialist knowledge, a broad understanding of international business relations is required at management level.

Methodical Skills

You will be able to apply your knowledge to familiar and new situations in the context of international general management in a practice-oriented manner using modern media and digital techniques, tools and methods, also taking into account cross-disciplinary, social and ethical aspects. For example, after completing your studies, you will be enabled to organise complex international projects, taking on both a leading or an advisory role. You will further be able to assess and evaluate empirical insights in order to develop evidence-based decisions and implications.

Social Skills

You will understand and practice efficient forms of communication in international groups, possess intercultural competence, show empathy and team spirit, be able to shape group-dynamic development processes and to manage conflicts. You will be able to present confidently, convince argumentatively, delegate tasks and involve team members in goal-oriented problem solutions and decisions.
